

Proposed Charter/Code Changes

Raise the Pay

By CM Rob Oppenheim

I am proposing changing elected officials' honoraria. If the legislation passes, it will take effect in July 2007—twelve years after the last change. The proposed changes are printed below. The new amounts are $900/month for the mayor and $450/month for council members. This may change as it is debated.

Participation

Elected officials function mostly as volunteers, and it takes time and dedication to do good work. It's all part of the job: We need to be well informed, actively seek opinions, and propose sound solutions. The meeting schedule can be daunting: there are the council meetings along with M-UTC, Finance, and committee meetings like Recreation Board and Traffic and meetings with neighboring towns, county and state officials. We also need to communicate with constituents, hear concerns and ideas, and help residents stay involved and informed.

Here are two ways to encourage council members' participation. The carrot—offer more money for more work. The stick—tighten attendance requirements.

Pay for Work

Compensation could be linked to participation—up to a monthly limit. If this were implemented, it would encourage attendance, discourage tardiness (no pay for late arrivals), and would reward hard work and ensure that the town is getting value for its money.

As it is now, many working people cannot afford to put in the 40 to 60 hours each month that it takes to be a dependable, effective representative. One consequence is to limit the pool of willing candidates. Reasonable compensation would enable more to participate.

Pay-for-work could be based on public activity: Meeting attendance, legislative contributions, and Town Crier submissions could be considered. Yes, the mayor and council do lots of other work, but public activity can be a good barometer of total activity.

The proposed Town Charter changes would allow enactment of a pay-for-work plan. That doesn't mean it will happen, only that it could happen. Some council members strongly oppose the idea, and I leave it to them to put forward their positions.

Allow Council to Reject Raise

The charter changes also allow for a newly elected council to rescind an increase. So if people find the change is too much then they can elect a council that rejects the raise.

Changing the effective date for adjusting compensation from June to July would accomplish two goals. The new rate would begin with the fiscal year on July 1, so it would not affect the budget retroactively. That also would allow a newly elected council to rescind any increase members found objectionable.

Required Attendance

Now here's the stick (twig?): Work sessions and legislative sessions would both count for attendance. Each member would be required to attend at least one council meeting every two months, instead of one every three months, or risk removal from office.

Is It Enough?

I should have proposed a higher amount for council members; $600/month would have been better. What do you think? Express your opinion on TownTalk and at the Work session, Monday, Sep. 25, 2006 and the legislative meeting, Monday, Oct. 2, 2006, 8 p.m.
